What I speak about

I speak in different formats: from hands-on workshops and keynotes to moderated panel discussions. The topics I am passionate about are: Leadership, Communication & Influence, Sustainable Success.

My work blends global stage experience with practical mentoring tools your audience can apply immediately. Below is a selection of my topics for workshops and keynotes.

01

Leadership Communication & Influence

The next level of your career is rarely about working harder: it's about communicating with more authority, clarity, and influence, while delivering with ease.

I break down how presence is created through message structure, voice and delivery, cultural awareness and the ability to hold a room under pressure. You will learn how to turn strong expertise into presence that lands: clear, persuasive, and impossible to overlook.

02

Mosaic of Life: How Ambitious Leaders Build Sustainable Success

Sustainable success isn't about controlling life, it's about managing the key segments that shape it: your energy & time, making strategic career decisions, and managing your visibility. We will explore the internal fears and limitations influencing your decisions, learn how to shift your emotional state in the moment, and reconnect with your authentic ambitions and direction.

03

Empowering Lessons from Hollywood Legends

Some of the most powerful leadership lessons don't come from a boardroom: mine came from two decades producing for icons like Ennio Morricone, James Newton Howard, and Priscilla Presley.

I share the stories behind their success and turn them into practical tools: how to act on your ambitions without waiting for "the right moment," the routines and discipline that sustain a powerful leader, and how to build real balance without giving up growth.

Through reflection and hands-on exercises, you will get a fresh lens on your own decisions, work flow and goals.

About

I spent 25+ years as an international executive and creative producer, including a decade at Sony Masterworks, producing 65+ projects across 35+ countries and collaborating with organisations including Netflix and Warner Bros., and iconic artists including Ennio Morricone and Priscilla Presley.

Leading high-stakes productions in traditionally male-dominated environments taught me what it really takes to lead: not just competence, but presence, resilience, and the ability to influence without burning out.

Today I'm a keynote speaker, strategic mentor, and published author, helping leaders communicate with more authority, clarity, and ease. Through my Mosaic of Life Method™, I work extensively with senior women leaders navigating rapidly growing responsibility, though the same tools apply to any leader stretched across too many demands.

My sessions are structured, highly practical, and built for immediate use: clear frameworks and takeaways teams can apply the same day.

Based in Amsterdam, I deliver keynotes and interactive sessions internationally, in person and online. I'm fluent in English and Russian and can deliver sessions in both languages.

TECHNICAL REQUIREMENTS

A lavalier or headset microphone rather than a handheld, a screen or projector for slides, and a confidence monitor where the room allows one. I bring my own laptop and clicker, and ask for a thirty minute technical check before doors open.

Frequently asked questions

How far in advance should we book?

Six to eight weeks is comfortable for a keynote or workshop, and gives me time to tailor the content. Shorter notice is sometimes possible, so it's always worth asking.

Do you travel outside the Netherlands?

Yes. I'm based in Amsterdam and travel in person across Europe. Travel further afield is possible by arrangement.

Are you available for online engagements?

Yes for workshops: I'm very comfortable delivering these online. For keynotes, it depends on the length and format required, so it's worth discussing on a call.

Can the talk be adapted to our theme?

Yes. Every session can be shaped around your audience and objectives, worked out on a call beforehand.

May we record the session?

Recording for internal use within your organisation is fine. For public distribution, please ask in advance.
